

Minister to Compare Religion with Football

The Rev. Emerald L. Olson, minister of the Manhattan Beach Community Church, will discuss the topic, "Can Religion Be as Exciting as Football?" at duplicate services at 9:30 and at 11 a.m. today. Following yesterday's crosstown clash of USC and UCLA, this topic will have particular meaning, Rev. Olson said. A nursery for small children is provided.

(1) All vented heating appliances such as basement furnaces, forced air furnaces, vented wall heaters, and the floor furnace illustrated above are recommended forms of gas heating. The flame is in its own separate compartment so that only clean, moisture-free heated air is released into the room.

(2) Unvented room heaters like these may be unsafe unless properly adjusted and used in a well ventilated room. They also present a fire and burn hazard, and are not recommended. (3) If you must use unvented heaters, be sure that they bear the A.C.A. blue star seal of approval, and have them checked periodically to see that they are in proper adjustment. Call a heating service agency or the gas company for service. (4) Remember—unvented heaters require a constant supply of air. Always open a window or provide other means of ventilation when an unvented heater is used.

Unvented Heaters are Stealthy Killers

Every year a number of people in Los Angeles County are killed accidentally by carbon monoxide poisoning. Some of these people meet death because of running automobile engines in their garages without sufficient ventilation. Last year one person was killed accidentally when the deadly gas somehow or other seeped into his closed car as he slept alongside of the road with the motor running. Others die from carbon monoxide generated in burning buildings. However, the largest number are killed simply because, as the coroner's reports state of "operation of a gas heater in a closed room."

The treacherous thing about carbon monoxide gas is that it is odorless except at very high concentrations, and it therefore kills before its presence is suspected. The gas is produced by the incomplete burning of carbon-containing materials such as wood, coal, gasoline, and natural gas.

Vents Needed If a gas heater is properly vented to the outside of the house, any carbon monoxide gas which might be produced because of poor burning adjustment is of course carried to the open air through the vent. If a heater does not have a vent, fresh air must be provided through some other means, usually a window opened wide enough to provide good circulation. Even if an unvented heater is burning properly, a supply of fresh air should be available in order to supplant oxygen consumed in the burning process.

Whenever the oxygen content of a closed room is lowered because of an open fire, there is always the possibility that carbon monoxide may be produced. An unvented heater should not be allowed to burn all night. Any heater which does not burn properly should be examined by an appliance expert or a representative of the gas company. The first symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning are usually headaches, dizziness, and shortness of breath on exertion. When such symptoms are noticed in circumstances which point to the possibility of a carbon monoxide hazard, fresh air should be made available immediately. Heating appliances should be checked.

Civil Defense group of Waleria, Pacific Hills, and Weston Hills will hold its next meeting Dec. 4, 8 p.m., at the home of Mrs. Guy Richardson, 3314 Primm Way.

Everyone is welcome, and volunteers are needed, Mrs. Richardson said. Plans are now in progress for a first aid class to begin in January, according to Mrs. R. A. Osborn. Class is tentatively scheduled for two nights a week, she said.
